Precision Labs Announces Cascade Plus Fertilizer

Northbrook, IL, February 7, 2002 -- Rick Wohlner, president, Precision Laboratories today announced the introduction of Cascade Plus Fertilizer™, a wetting agent and fertilizer combination product specifically designed for the golf course, landscape and specialty turf market.

The new product combines the proven wetting agent technology of Cascade Plus™ with a unique fertilizer blend to provide turf managers with a single application of enhanced water infiltration chemistry and turfgrass nutrients.

Cascade Plus is a wetting agent which has been scientifically proven to control localized dry spots and to significantly decrease soil hydrophobicity. It is one of the most well-researched wetting agents on the market and has a longer duration of effectiveness than its competitors.

When combined with this unique fertilizer blend, Cascade Plus Fertilizer offers a synchronized release technology that has been shown to improve turfgrass quality and water infiltration. In both university tests and on-site golf course testing throughout the summer of 2001, the new product was found to be a unique water management tool, controlling localized dry spot, increasing water infiltration and more efficiently managing water usage.

“Cascade Plus Fertilizer combines technology with timing,” says Wohlner. “It offers the superintendent the convenience of applying Cascade Plus in one step with turfgrass nutrients. Tests have shown that twelve week applications of our new product line significantly improves turfgrass quality, reduces water usage and controls localized dry spot. For use on tees, fairways and roughs, we see Cascade Plus Fertilizer as another example of Precision’s commitment to provide products that add value for our golf course, landscape and athletic field customers.”

Cascade on Fertilizer, Add One

According to Wohlner, Cascade Plus Fertilizer will be available in 50 lb. bags and in 1-ton bulk sacks beginning this spring. Additional product information can be obtained by calling 1-800-323-6280 or by visiting the company’s website at www.precisionlab.com.
